THE ENSEMBLE

At a glance

OSVL – Villa Lobos Symphony Orchestra

Is a Brazilian orchestra known by the acronym OSVL (“Orquestra Sinfônica Villa Lobos” in Portuguese) based in the state of São Paulo and with branches in all the main state Brazilian capitals. OSVL was founded in 2000 by the conductor and current Music Director Adriano Machado and is composed by the most experienced musicians from Brazil. It performs a diverse repertoire that would not normally be in the programming of traditional orchestras, which includes classical music but also popular music, musicals, film-concerts and recordings.

Since its inception, the orchestra shows to the audience a mix of the fineness of classical music and enjoyment of the pop world. Being acclaimed by critics from both scenes, OSVL has performed from Beethoven to Electronic Music. Its versatility is made to be the most experienced Brazilian orchestra with international productions (detailed info on Maestro Adriano’s bio), recording several CDs and DVDs with celebrities and reaching more than 400 thousand people on concerts and festivals in 2019.

In the last seasons, the Orchestra and Maestro Adriano were the great protagonists in Brazil on the performance of film-concerts, always achieving the best standards of excellence and kicking off an important phase in its history. The excellence in performance granted an important partnership with some cine-concert producers around the world with a great highlight to Disney Concerts and John Williams that after a detailed analysis approved OSVL and Maestro Adriano as the main names in Brazil for this concert format.

With the experience gained along these years, including the experience of working with audio click track, visual punches and video streamers, Adriano Machado and the Villa Lobos Symphony Orchestra are consolidated as the most prepared institution to lead orchestral film concerts in Brazil.

Since 2019 OSVL and Maestro Adriano Machado are represented by Taca Tintas.
